I hope there are no stages for speeches and music on January 6th.

I think standing around listening to speeches about things we already know and agree with is a waste of time. We need to be focused on why we are there. People should all concentrate as close to the Capitol Building as possible and watch the action unfold. We need to look BIG.

People should not be scattered around DC distracted with meaningless shit.

Not even a bot because the formatting has been altered since your original post. Since you're reading this how about you use your energy to support something worthwhile, like saving our Republic?

8 ▼ Fuck i just made this exact same post. 100% agree

Jan 6 is not a rally, its not a day for speakers to repeat the same talking points we've heard a million times,, its a day of action

Don't let the RINOs hijack January 6 like they did the tea party events

8 ▼ Agreed. I really hope the normal "stop the steal" MyPillow crew is nowhere to be found. They are really good at keeping the noise and energy down and telling people to move their flags out of the way of the camera shot. They are also really good at putting me to sleep

7 ▼ Hopefully it will be like that rally where the crowd just started chanting over the useless turds "Fight for Trump"

No time for popularity grifters right now.

6 ▼ Preach. Preach. We don't need to hear a word about who we are gonna primary and chants and all this gay shit. We are there to take the fucking republic back and give it to the people

What if we pushed them off the stages and made a makeshift gallows for the China bought politicians in the capitol?

If the Capitol Building does not look this crowded, it would have been done wrong:

2 I agree completely on this. We need attention directed on the capitol building and we want them to feel our pressure and hear our voices through those walls.
